

Quality Policy and Company Philosophy

Display International Schwendinger GmbH & Co. KG

The guiding principle of our thinking and acting is: “We turn visions into reality!”

Trade fair and interior design is based on creative concepts that originate in the mind and “in the gut”, are expressed in images and implemented in viable structures and installations. Our highest priority is to carry out each job as accurately as possible according to its design specifications. Particular attention is paid to this during project planning as well as during production and installation. This is the standard against which we would like to be measured.

In general, the highest possible quality of our products and services is the foundation of our successful business operations, since it is an important criterion for the order placement of our customers. It is our commitment to maintain and strengthen the reputation and success of our company. It is our goal to fulfil customers’ requirements completely or to exceed them whenever possible. The protection connected with this commitment and targeted quality improvement are not merely assigned to quality specialists. Quality is a shared responsibility of management and of all employees. It requires a conscious commitment and active collaboration of everyone involved.

In order to meet this standard in all areas of the company, we work in accordance with the quality management system DIN EN ISO 9001:2015, which we are continually developing within the context of continuous improvement.
